

"FRIZZLED" BIRD AT POULTRY SHOW

Rooster With "Contrary" Feathers—"Naked Necks" Also a Feature.

A "frizzled" rooster, a bird whose feathers grow in backward, instead of the usual way, is to be one of many features at the seventh annual exhibition of the National Capital Poultry and Pigeon Association, to be held Tuesday in Palace Hall, 914 E Street, between 1,200 and 1,500 birds of many breeds.

Two other rare birds in the show will be "naked necks"—birds which have feathers all over their bodies and on their heads, but none on their necks. This used to be a very popular breed in Europe, and a few were imported into America. The two birds which will be shown here in Washington are the first to be seen at a poultry exhibition in years.

Big Lutes and Other Breeds.
In addition to these novelties, there will be a great display of the egg-laying and utility breeds. Single Comb Rhode Island will be featured almost a show in themselves, there being over 100 of these birds entered. White Leghorns and Anconas, which are now raising each other in egg-laying contests throughout the country, will be on hand in great numbers. There will be also a display of such as the Orpingtons, weighing more than twelve pounds apiece, and tiny bantams, weighing practically less than nothing. And there will be turkeys, which escaped the ax on Thanksgiving and Christmas days; geese, ducks, swans and pheasants.

Attractive Pigeon Display.
The pigeon display, numbering about 500 birds, will be featured by exhibits from the Army and Navy, between which there is great rivalry. Lieut. J. J. McTeague, junior, will be in charge of the Navy exhibit, while Lieut. R. R. Delhaug, chief of the Army Pigeon Service, will be in charge of the Army's display. Among the Army birds are some of the her pigeons which flew through shot, shell and bombs in France, and among the Navy's birds are some which saved aviators and destroyers.

Members of the American Racing Pigeon Union in Washington are showing a string of their birds which have won prizes up to 1,000 miles against all competitors in the east. The association is offering a cup for the finest pair of fancy pigeons and the entries indicate that Eliza Hanson of Silver Spring, Md., and Hart of the Arlington Hotel will fight it out for this prized trophy. Mr. Hanson has one of the greatest and most famous birds in the world, and he, members among his birds entered for the Washington show those which have won the highest honors for him at Madison Square Garden, New York, Boston and Baltimore, as well as the champion at the Hagerstown fall fair.

There will be pigeons with tails like fans, other birds which, when talked to, will puff up their chests and strut about, and still others which, at the command of their owner, will turn somersaults on the floor. It is expected that the judging will be done on Tuesday. The public is invited to be present while this work is going on. From then on until Saturday the winners, as well as the losers, will be on display. During the week there will be lectures and demonstrations on poultry raising, on both large and small scales. The demonstrators will have on hand models of all the modern poultry equipment known to the business of poultry raising, as well as the records of the various breeds, for utility and egg-laying purposes.

PLANS TO BENEFIT WORKERS.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, December 27.—A comprehensive plan to help the employees of the Carnegie Steel Company improve their condition was announced today by J. H. Jones, general superintendent of the Youngstown district. Night schools will be continued, although they have not proved a success in the company's plans here. Americanization cannot be forced on the foreign born. Mr. Jones said the company had found it was profitable only when the demand for it arose among the men themselves.

'LITTLE MASTER' OF SUN WORSHIPPERS ARRESTED

CHICAGO, December 27 (by the Associated Press).—Ottoman Zar Adust Hanisch, self-styled "little master" of the Mazdaznan cult of the so-called Sun Worshipers, was arrested tonight and started for Los Angeles, where he was indicted on June 4, 1918, several revolting offenses being charged. Hanisch was convicted in the federal district court here in 1915 of sending indecent matter, his cult book, "The Inner Circle," through the mails, and was sentenced to six months in jail. Hanisch and a number of his followers were said to be celebrating a holiday at Chicago soon for the "Ezhan Bar" in a private home when Lieut. Charles A. Jones of the Los Angeles police and local detectives invaded the place. The "high priest" was attired in white flannels and golden slippers and, according to the police, wore a profane protest at their intrusion. Lieut. Jones said Hanisch had planned to leave Chicago soon for Zurich, Switzerland. Among the Los Angeles complainants, he said, were Iddo Tabbel, a boy, and Miss Angelica Sandberg, eighteen years old. Hanisch claims to be seventy years old, but the police say his father, a rabbi, died when he was only three. He is said to be Otto Z. Hanisch, son of Richard Hanisch, a Milwaukee music teacher, who came to Chicago in 1904. The Mazdaznan cult had a pretentious temple on the corner of Lake Michigan and Chicago's South Side when it was raided in 1913. Later he established headquarters in Los Angeles, but following the indictment, it is said the cult has a half-million-dollar temple in Zurich.

WILLARD TAKES ISSUE WITH HINES' FIGURES

BALTIMORE, Md., December 27.—President Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, in a speech at a dinner given tonight by the Baltimore Chamber of Commerce in honor of the merchants of Baltimore for the Western Maryland railroad and the newly elected president of the Union Pacific system, took issue with the figures compiled by Director General Hines, which showed that when the roads come back to private ownership they will show an increased pay roll of 35 per cent.

The more nearly correct figures, Mr. Willard stated, was 70 per cent. Increased cost of operating the railroads when they come back will be upward of $1,700,000,000 and will yield revenue under $1,000,000,000, which means the roads will be short about $600,000,000.

The roads today would yield the roads no surplus and no dividend. His solution of the problem which now confronts Congress consists in increasing the rates.

Mr. Gray, in his remarks, after thanking the merchants of Baltimore for the honor accorded him, also discussed the general railroad situation, saying the roads were in a transition state, and that it would take a very wonderful prophet to tell what the coming years would bring to the industry. But there must inevitably result a hiatus, in which the credit of the railroads of the nation will be poor indeed.

BRITISH SHIPPING AT CRISIS.
Labor Trouble and Railway Truck Shortage Hold Up Cargoes.

England is confronted with one of the most critical shipping situations the country has ever known, despite the increase in the number of ships flying the British flag. The movement of the port and transit committee of London yesterday informed the United States Department of Commerce, Calcutta, that the docks that some ships are allowed to lie in the harbor from seven to eight days before discharging their cargoes. Increases in the price of foodstuffs and raw material result from the heavy demurrage charges.

The shortage of railway trucks is estimated at 300,000.
